Chowing Down—Inhaling ice cream, Tim Goff shows that he has a stomach of titanium. Even though the foam is flying, he manages to keep his curly hair clean. He must be one of those people who can put a buffet out of business.

Magically Delicious—Do you remember the times when just finishing your lunch was enough? Now one hot dog is just an appetizer. "Double Dog Day" is just what the doctor ordered for Joe Kovacic. His skinny frame could use a little extra...

Remember When . . . ?

- We used to beg Mr. Elliott every day in gym class to play with the parachute.
- We would save all our money and go to Santa's Secret Shop and spend it all on cheap presents for our parents.
- We used to jump off the teeter-totters and the person in the air would hit the ground and fall off ("cherry bombs").
- The colored tokens we would get for lunch and then never used would accumulate in our desks.
- We had colored flags to tell us if it was inside or outside recess.
- Mrs. Schaar would pull out our teeth and put them in a treasure chest.
- We would play dodgeball and get hit so hard that we would have big red marks on our faces.
- We would walk back from the high school in the freezing cold after swimming, and all our hair would freeze.
- We would sneak down to the creek during recess at Scott School and throw tadpoles at each other.
